

Typical Tuscan liqueurs

The old liqueur factory Nardini was established in Barga around the year 1890.

It soon proved itself successful, thank to the quality of its produces, mostly its ponches, which are typical, strong Tuscan drinks, such as Nardini Leone 70¹ and its Mandarin punch².

Its product range has gradually enlarged keeping its quality at the highest level.

In the two last decades Nardini has added to its renowned product line the following liqueurs:

Limoncyto

Elmelindo - green apple liqueur

The high quality Tuscan grappa range

The Wodka range with its lemon vodka, peach vodka and Kalita vodka.

The berry liqueur range

The liqueur range for aperitifs and cocktails

The aniseed liqueur range including Sassolino, Sambuca, Anice and Brusca.

The last addition is the Bombardino³, punch made of eggs, sugar and distilled sugarcane rum.

¹ In Tuscany a punch is a drink prepared with LEONE70 liqueur, sugar and, lemon zest with either the addition of coffee, milk or boiling water

² MANDARIN punch: you can have it either pure, which means without diluting it with water and red hot, or adding hot water to it, never forget orange or lemon zest.

³ Drink it pure and red hot or add either some fresh cream to it, LEONE70 liqueur or MANDARIN punch.

Grape range

Grape spirits

They are obtained from the distillation of grapes previously fermented in a controlled temperature environment: an exclusive method which intensely enhances the aroma and the taste of the grapes used.
